Government recommendations for Covid-19 vaccine boosters: At our meeting on Feb 1, 2023, the Health & Safety working group reviewed the Ontario Government current guidelines for Covid 19 vaccine boosters. “Most people under the age of 65 are advised to get their booster six months after their last dose or following a Covid 19 infection. People at high risk of severe Covid 19 infection are strongly advised to get their booster at a three-month interval.” Anyone who is over the age of 65 is considered high risk. Keeping your vaccine status up to date and wearing a mask in crowded indoor spaces continue to be the most effective ways to avoid getting Covid – and especially to avoid serious illness if you do get infected.
